Gioia: Sailing into Emotion

Her very name reveals her: Gioia. In 2024 she emerged from the Codecasa shipyard as a fulfilled promise, the embodiment of a present that renews itself without ever betraying its roots. She is a yacht, but before that she is a cultural creation: a sign that speaks the authentic language of Italy, shaped by skilled hands and guided by a heart turned toward the future. The year 2025 adds depth to her destiny: two centuries of shipyard history look upon the present, weaving tradition and vision. Within this extraordinary arc of time, Gioia becomes a contemporary voice that converses with heritage, a bridge uniting the purity of origins with the luminous momentum of tomorrow. The profile of Gioia glides across the water with the perfect measure of essential design. The vertical bow is a gesture of strength and purity, while wide windows open the interiors to light and seascape, turning navigation into a continuous dialogue with the sea.

At 43 meters in length, 9 meters in beam, and 499 GT, she embodies balance carved into form: sober proportions, never loud, commanding respect in a whisper. Her steel hull and aluminum superstructure fuse solidity and lightness into harmony, shaping volumes that offer breadth without excess, intimacy without confinement. The exterior unfolds as a stage for the sea. At the stern, the bathing platform kisses the water, a threshold between the vessel's quiet and the ocean's embrace. On the main deck, spacious lounges invite life outdoors, sheltered yet always open to the breath of the wind. The sundeck is the true terrace in the sky: a panoramic Jacuzzi crowns the horizon, with sunbeds and lounges arranged like the wings of a suspended theater. Each deck is a scenario for different experiences, from the sun caressing the teak to the hush of starlit nights. Crossing the threshold, Gioia opens like a universe of light and stillness. The saloons breathe like verses of a poem, where the sea enters through the windows and becomes part of the décor. The main saloon is an oasis of natural brightness: pale woods, bespoke furnishings, sofas that seem sculpted out of silence. Space flows with effortless grace, as the horizon itself becomes a companion to the journey.

The dining area, anchored by a grand, sculptural table, is a temple of conviviality: each dinner a ritual, each gesture elevated to celebration.

The owner's suite, set forward on the main deck, is a private sanctuary: a walk-in wardrobe opening like a treasure chest, a marble bathroom veined like flowing water, geometries that amplify both breath and serenity. The guest cabins, doubles and twins with additional Pullman berths, host up to twelve guests in refined comfort: natural fabrics, luminous palettes, sartorial details that embody a language of welcome.

The shared areas extend into an upper deck saloon, intimate and private, a retreat for reading or conversation, and a dayhead designed with the refinement of a gallery. The central staircase, sculptural and luminous, links the decks like a vertebral column of design.

The galley, invisible heart of the yacht, is conceived as a refined atelier: stainless-steel surfaces, professional equipment, and an immaculate order that speaks of devotion to the art of hospitality. Every detail — from the crew quarters to the service areas — is conceived to ensure discreet efficiency, allowing the rhythm of life on board to unfold in harmony.

Life aboard Gioia flows like a musical score. Mornings ignite with light in the cabins, afternoons expand across the saloons and decks, evenings gather into constellations on the sundeck.

The sea becomes a stage, the sky a curtain, the yacht itself a silent orchestra accompanying every moment.

Nine crew members move as discreet custodians, ensuring hospitality that is invisible yet flawless. The lives of twelve guests find their rhythm here: space, privacy, intimacy, and connection, blending community with contemplation.

Beneath the elegance of her lines lies the essence of her journey. Gioia is a displacement yacht, designed to unite comfort with stability. CMC Marine Stabilis Electra SE160 stabilizers ensure tranquility in every sea, turning navigation into a silent dance.

Twin Caterpillar C32 Acert engines, each delivering 1,600 hp, drive her to 16 knots, while an autonomy of 4,000 nautical miles at 11 knots opens the breath of the ocean. She is iron in substance and light in soul, an ocean companion built for endurance, carrying audacity to the horizon where sea and sky meet.

In her essence shines Codecasa's spirit: Innovative by Tradition. Every detail, every proportion, every finish is part of a language renewed for two centuries with humility and rigor. Not spectacle, but substance. Not excess, but excellence.

Her classification under Lloyd's Register seals a construction that unites safety with beauty, guaranteeing a solidity that belongs to time itself. Gioia is poetry shaped into water. A discreet yet powerful voice, capable of uniting wind, light, and matter in a timeless symphony. She is a home upon the sea, a total experience, a fragment of culture carried across generations.

Her name preserves both promise and destiny: joy as feeling, joy as voyage, joy as memory. In her silent passage resounds the echo of two centuries, and with it the certainty that the future, when embodied in art, already belongs to eternity.
